Lincoln officials support special districts bill

By Ben Kleppinger
ben@theinteriorjournal.com

FRANKFORT — A bill that would increase transparency and accountability for special districts is popular with some Lincoln County officials.

House Bill 1 was approved unanimously by the state House and Senate last week and is currently awaiting Gov. Steve Beshear's signature before it becomes law.

The legislation, which would place stricter budget-reporting requirements on Kentucky's approximately 1,200 special districts, was pushed by state auditor Adam Edelen as a way to shed light on what he has called a $2.7 billion "ghost government."

Edelen unveiled an online database last year, detailing which special districts weren't in compliance with state laws. He also criticized the state's patchwork of laws concerning special districts, which are organizations such as public libraries, ambulance services, fire protection districts and many others.

Lincoln County's nine special districts were found to be largely in compliance with state laws, according to Edelen's database.

Officials with some of those districts say they support the reforms House Bill 1 would enact.

"It's about accountability and making sure everybody is dotting their i's and crossing their t's," Lincoln County Fire Protection Chief Danny Glass said. "I never did have a problem with accountability and registration, things like that."

Lincoln FPD was the only district in Lincoln County found to be definitely out of compliance in one

School district looks at $515,000 in payroll cuts

STANFORD — After all the humanity on display during Tuesday night's Lincoln County Board of Education meeting, it seemed the only thing in the room left unmoved was the bottom line: budget cuts are going to be made somewhere, and it's not going to be painless.

After announcing last month a preliminary plan to save approximately $270,000 by eliminating the equivalent of six full-time teachers, Superintendent Karen Hatter submitted to the board a complete recommendation for cuts to the 2013-14 budget, including an additional $245,000 in savings that come mainly from reducing the number of days school employees work.

"I believe that budget cuts

Academic Performance Consultant Sarah Hagans voices her opinions on how the board could go about making cuts. "I know it's a hard decision and I'm glad I don't have to make that decision because there are people attached," she said.

and making decisions about budget cuts is going to be the hardest thing that we could ever do," Hatter said. "That's mainly because when I look at the people that are attached to the budget cuts, I care about each and every one of them."

Federal cuts adding to financial woes

By Ben Kleppinger

STANFORD — Indiscriminate federal budget cuts, collectively known as the federal "sequester," are taking their own toll on next year's Lincoln County School District budget.

Superintendent Karen Hatter said reductions in federal funding for her district are going to cause personnel cuts on top of the half-million in local cuts she is already recommending to keep the general fund in balance.

The federal cuts could be as severe as 15 percent, but will hopefully wind up around 10 percent or less STANFORD — Department of Agriculture officials have awarded more than $1 million in loan and grant funding for a water system upgrade project on Danville Avenue.

USDA Rural Development State Director Tom Fern said Stanford Water Department will receive $750,000 in low-interest loans and $310,000 in grant money for the planned water line replacement.

"The improvements to Stanford's water system are critical for ensuring safe and reliable water for area residents," Fern said. "USDA is proud to work in Partnership with the City of Stanford on this much needed water improvement project."

Ky. AG opinion sought in Lincoln special deputy situation

By Kendra Peek

JUNCTION CITY — Junction City officials will ask the state Attorney General's Office for an opinion on whether council member Dewayne Taylor is potentially violating an incompatible offices statute by serving as a special deputy in Lincoln County.

Incompatible offices are those where a person cannot serve in more than one simultaneously, in order to maintain the "appearance of propriety," City Attorney Bill Noelker said in a previous interview.

Concerns arose in January that Taylor was in violation of the Kentucky statute, as he had been serving for the past two years as a special deputy for the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department, an unpaid volunteer position, and has been a member of the Junction City Council for eight years.

Sheriff: 'we're not going to disarm my citizens'

DANVILLE — Lincoln County's sheriff has joined a growing number of sheriffs who are publicly assuring voters they would fight against any federal gun confiscation program.

There are no plans for such a program at the federal level, but second-amendment supporters around the country are concerned about broader implications of a renewed push for gun-control legislation following the massacre of 20 children with an assault rifle at Sandy Hook Elementary School last year.

"As far as gun control ... there's no one going to come and take our guns. We're not going to disarm my citizens in my county," Folger told an audience of more than 100 Monday, at a meeting of the local 9-12 group, a patriotic Christian organization focused on limiting government.

Folger spoke to the group with Boyle County Sheriff Marty Elliott and Mercer County Sheriff Ernie Keltz, both of whom also said they would not support a federal move to confiscate everyone's

Annual Ag Day celebrates important person in U.S. economy: the farmer

By John W. McCauley
USDA Farm Service Agency

I speak for the people working for the U.S. Department of Agriculture. We all are proud to be partners with the men and women who farm and ranch in Kentucky. Agriculture is an honorable profession and we are honored to do our part to help. We salute you on Ag Day, March 19.

“Generations Nourishing Generations” is the theme for this year’s Ag Day. Our country’s farmers and ranchers work hard to provide food and clothing for our country and the world. Their dedication is an inspiration to us and to the next generation of farmers and ranchers. Without them, we would not have the abundant food supply, the fiber, and the fuel we depend on daily.

Agriculture involves sacrifice. As a youngster on the farm, the most immediate sacrifice noticed is sleep. Getting up early and working hard until sundown is not something that always comes easy...it usually has to be learned...from your parents or your grandparents.

That sacrifice continues as you grow. Or if you start to farm later in life, you encounter it immediately when you take charge of your operation... long, hard hours, dripping sweat in the soil and taking a risk when needed to doctor an animal, weld an implement or finance next year’s planting.

According to recent USDA studies, the agricultural sector right now remains a bright spot in terms of economic stability and growth and there is a strong demand for U.S. agricultural products. Generation after generation of agricultural producers in Kentucky are getting up early every day to keep this sector of the economy healthy, providing jobs and income for both rural and urban families and communities.

In 1960 each U.S. farmer provided food for about 25 people. Today, each U.S. farmer feeds more than 144 people, an increase of over 500%. Research and new technologies have boosted production, but someone still has to go outdoors and make things grow. Without regard for the wind, rain, snow, freeze, fire and drought...the farmer and the ranchers can be found tending the crops, flock or herd, and doing it well. Even with last season’s severe weather and natural disasters, American farmers and ranchers have still prevailed to get the food and fuel to market.

Let’s thank these men and women for a job well done. Agriculture is America’s number one export, and critical to sustaining a healthy economy. Kentucky’s top agriculture exports are: tobacco, soybeans, corn, and wheat. We are ranked number 2 in tobacco and number 15 in corn and soybeans exports in the nation. Currently, Kentucky has 13.99 million acres dedicated to agricultural production. Some of our major commodities are corn, soybeans, and tobacco.

Frankly, it’s easy to take agriculture for granted in America. Our food is readily accessible and very safe. For this, we’re unbelievably fortunate... but that doesn’t mean we don’t have an obligation to recognize who makes it possible.

This National Ag Day on March 19 is a good time to reflect - and be grateful for - American agriculture! To find more Ag Day information and events, visit the sponsoring Agricultural Council of American at www.agday.org.

March 21, 1963 — This advertisement from Lee Dog Food Company ran 50 years ago in The Interior Journal.

50 Years Ago

Originally published March 21, 1963

This year, there's been a huge scandal over in Europe involving how horse meat found its way into many different foods.

Horse meat is actually a pretty standard part of many cuisines around the world — it's only taboo in Western cultures where horses have gained pet status.

But even over here in the U.S. — if this week's Time Machine item is any indication — horse meat wasn't always as taboo as it is today. Humans here may not have eaten horse meat regularly half a century ago, but pets did.

This fascinating advertisement that ran exactly 50 years ago in the March 21, 1963, issue of The Interior Journal offers to buy "fresh dead horses" and, if that's not enough to make you a little queasy, it also offers a price for "old crippled and down horses."

In case you were wondering, the low-end $2 price is equal to about $15 in today's money. The high-end offer of $12 would be about $89 today.

Even after adjusting for inflation, that seems to me like a cheap price for an entire horse, even if it is dead.

You obviously won't see any modern-day dog food companies being so open about using dying horses in their products, but I was surprised to learn it would still be perfectly legal to do so.

According to Marion Nestle, author of "Feed Your Pet Right," many horse slaughterhouses began pet food companies in the 1920s as a way to sell off their horse meat.

"Horse meat remained a major ingredient in dog foods throughout the 1940s," Nestle writes on food-politics.com. "Since then, pet food companies replaced horse meat with meats from other animals. Although it continues to be permitted in pet food, I'm not aware of any company that would dare use it. It would have to be disclosed on package labels."

I suppose using dead and dying horses in dog food can't have been all that bad since the dogs lived to tell the tale. But I'm still going to be checking the ingredient list on my dog's food bag when I get home.

Sunshine Week forecast: party cloudy

Feds’ record on open records has some brights spots, but it still takes years to get info

The forecast from this year’s National “Sunshine Week,” which annually focuses on issues of freedom of information and transparency in government, is “partly cloudy, with some sun and some storms.”

On one hand, an Associated Press analysis released during the week found that the Obama administration in 2012 answered the highest number during his time in office of FOI requests for “government documents, emails, photographs and more, and it slightly reduced its backlog of requests from previous years.”

But the same analysis shows the administration more often cited legal provisions allowing the government to keep records or parts of its records secret,

INSIDE THE FIRST AMENDMENT

Gene Policinski
Guest columnist

especially a rule intended to protect national security — though some say that may just mean there were more requests for those kinds of documents.

AP also said that officials were making more use of exceptions in FOI laws that protect the “behind-the-scenes decision-making process.”

And the private National Security Archive, at George Washington University, issued a report on March 11 noting that only about one-half of 90 agencies ordered by President Obama to upgrade their responses to information requests and foster overall openness have “actually made concrete changes in their FOIA procedures.”

So what is the impact on you or me?

Well, first it means that even though President Obama’s first act in office was to declare a new effort to make government more transparent, some things have not changed.

If you write to a federal agency for information not generally available, it probably means at least as long a wait as in previous years and administrations — multiple years.

The AP report said that in 2012, “the government generally took longer to answer requests. Some agencies, such as the Health and Human Services Department, took less time than the previous year to turn over files. But at the State Department, for example, even urgent requests submitted under a fast-track system covering breaking news or events where a person’s life was at stake took an average two years to wait for files.

And there’s a new bit of irony for those in the information business. Journalists have had to wait even longer for their freedom of information requests to be granted. AP said that “the rate at which the government granted so-called expedited processing, which moves an urgent request to the front of the line for a speedy answer, fell from 24 percent in 2011 to 17 percent last year.” The CIA denied every such request last year, it said.

So in an era in which data is more easily accumulated, sorted, tracked, analyzed and accessed, the response times to our FOI requests remain firmly rooted in the days of paper, manila folders and file cabinets.

The lifeblood of a representative democracy is information, so that citizens can make informed decisions at the ballot box about policy, spending, performance and goals. For information to be useful, it needs to be accurate, complete and timely, particularly for financial data in times when budget battles seemingly are being fought every few months.

Some time ago, Obama also publicly renounced an earlier administration’s doctrine that became enshrined in the post-Sept. 11-attacks era. The president declared that the posture of agencies toward FOI requests should return to “open-until-closed,” instead of the opposite approach in the name of national security.

But a government “door” that opens, on average, two years after citizens knock on it means that those seeking information on public programs paid for by public funds are spending a long time waiting “in the cold” — and that’s not good for those in charge of our public policy or for democracy.

An encouraging word A time of optimism and hope

By Howard Coop

One morning the sun was warm and bright. I looked out the kitchen window and saw two doves sitting close together on the rail around the patio. Then, I looked farther, and I saw some robins hopping around on the lawn searching for food in the tender, green grass that had just begun to grow.

As I stood there and looked at that lovely scene, I thought, "It's spring at last!" The long, dreary winter, not nearly as bad as it could have been, has passed, and in the depth of their hearts, most folk are truly delighted with the change. Signs of spring - warm days, pleasant sunshine, grass beginning to grow, the occasional sound of a lawnmower, some early flowers blooming, trees putting forth buds and birds singing cheerfully - are appearing everywhere. Evidences of vitality and new life are all around us.

The sun has reached the vernal equinox, that time when it crosses the equator in its annual journey northward. At this point, the days and nights are equal in length, and the season changes from winter to spring in the northern hemisphere. After lying dormant through the long and dreary months of winter, everything begins to come to life. It is, indeed, an exciting time. Thomas Nashe, an English satirist and poet of the sixteenth century, wrote, "Spring, the sweet spring, is the year's pleasant king; Then blooms each thing....Cold doth not sting, the pretty birds sing." And most hearts overflow with gladness.

But the arrival of spring means much more than a mere change of seasons when there is a change from cold to warmer days. Because of all that is happening in our environment, we readily associate the coming of spring with the ideas of invigoration, rebirth, revitalization, rejuvenation, renewal, resurrection and growth. Therefore, we can put behind us some of the unpleasant experiences of life, and allow spring to become a pleasant time when the human heart is filled with optimism and hope.

Maxine Perkins, 84, of Hustonville, passed away Thursday, March 14 at Baptist Health in Lexington.

Born March 16, 1928, in Liberty, Maxine was a daughter of the late Clifton and Clara Mae Wilcher Delk. She was a homemaker and a member of Grace Fellowship Church.

She was also preceded in death by one brother, C.M. Delk; and one sister, Alene Philpot.

Survivors include two sons, Larry (Sandy) Perkins of Hustonville and Jimmy (Donna) Perkins of Waynesburg; three daughters, Diane (Wayne) Roberts and Kim (Roger) Caudill both of Hustonville and Vicky Miracle of Stanford; two brothers, Harold (Jackie) Delk of Stanford and Glenn (Patsy) Delk of Harrodsburg; two sisters; Kathleen Carman of Stanford and Shirley Ann (Gary) Roberts of Junction City; six grandchildren; six great-grandchildren; and a

Sara’s notes

by Sara Givens

On March 20 was the first day of spring - Hallelujah! The signs of spring are gradually approaching as the sun has bursted from behind the clouds and the earth is changing its carpet to green grass. The trees are budding, buttercups are sprouting up from the earth and the fields are waiting patiently for crops. We have waited with anticipation for the smell of fresh air and plenty of sunshine. God is awesome!! Glory to His name.

Easter is March 31 and there will be an Easter program at the Boneyville Baptist Church immediately after the morning worship service. There will also be an Easter program at the Bethel AME Church immediately after the morning worship service.

A “Good Friday” service will be held at the Pleasant Valley Baptist Church on March 29 at 7 p.m. Elder Jerry Wilkinson, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Hodgenville, will be the guest preacher. Elder Shea Brown is the pastor.

A sunrise service will also be held at the Pleasant Valley Boone’s Creek on March 31 at 6 p.m. Elder Shea Brown will be delivering the message. Breakfast will be served immediately after the sunrise service.

There will also be a Sunrise Service held at the Bethel AME Church at 6 a.m. on March 31. The guest preacher will be announced in next week’s news. Rev. Kelvin Robinson is the pastor.

Special prayer for Mr. Brook Barleston, son of Rev. and Mrs. James (Wanda) Barleston, who is in the hospital. Also Mr.

and Mrs. Emmitt Patton and Mrs. Lillian (Sis) Logan and all of the other sick and shut-ins including Rev. Floyd Raglin and Mr. Charles Cloyd.

There will be a Simpson/Hayes family reunion meeting on Saturday, March 23 at the Boneyville Baptist Church at 11 a.m. Please call Mrs. Sara Givens at 606-365-2479 for additional information.

Thought for the week: No matter what season of life you are in - no matter how long, short, painful or easy it might be - God wants you to know you are never alone.

CITIMORTGAGE, INC.

PLAINTIFF

vs.

NOTICE OF SALE

PETER S. KENDRICK AKA PETER KENDRICK ET AL

DEFENDANTS

FRIDAY, MARCH 22, 2013, AT 10:00 A.M.
FRONT DOOR, LINCOLN COUNTY COURTHOUSE

Pursuant to a Judgment and Order of Sale of the Lincoln Circuit Court entered October 10, 2012, in the above-styled civil action, the undersigned Master Commissioner will sell the following real property located at 175 Robin Drive, Stanford, Lincoln County, Kentucky, at the front door, Lincoln County Courthouse, on Friday, March 22, 2013, at the hour of 10:00 a.m., or as soon thereafter as said property can be sold, said property being more particularly described as follows:

BEING Lot No. 17 of Silver Flats Subdivision as shown by plat of record in Plat Book 4, page 3 (new Plat File A-92) in the Lincoln County Court Clerk's Office.

This being the same property acquired by Peter S. Kendrick and Susanna R. Kendrick, his wife, by deed from Faye H. Kidd, a single person, dated January 4, 1997, of record in Deed Book 293, Page 636, Lincoln County Court Clerk's Office.

The above described real property will be sold and conveyed subject to such valid and existing easements, restrictions, reservations, conditions, covenants and limitations apparent or of record in the chain of title.

The sale of the above real property will be made on a credit of thirty (30) days time with the privilege extended to the purchaser of paying the entire purchase price, or any part in excess of ten percent (10%) thereof, in cash at the time of the sale. If the sale be made on credit, the purchaser shall pay to the Master Commissioner immediately at the time of the sale ten percent (10%) of the total sale price and execute bond for the balance due in thirty (30) days, bearing interest at the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum from the date of sale until paid, with a good and sufficient surety thereon; and the bond shall be secured by a lien upon said property sold which shall have the full force and effect of a judgment. The purchaser may pay the purchase price money due on the bond with accrued interest at any time before maturity.

The real property described herein is to be sold at the time and place stated; and shall be sold free and clear of all liens, indebtedness, interests and claims of the parties hereto, subject to any and all applicable statutory rights of redemption.

All delinquent ad valorem taxes, if any, interest and penalties will be paid out of the proceeds of said sale. The purchaser will be responsible for payment of the 2013 ad valorem taxes.

Possession of the real property will be given to the purchaser with the delivery of the deed of conveyance thereto. The purchaser will be responsible for all risks of loss to the premises upon acceptance of their bid at the time of sale.

The purpose of this sale is to satisfy the judgment of the Lincoln Circuit Court in the above-styled action in favor of Plaintiff in the sum of $64,229.79 plus interest, advances for the protection of the property, costs and attorney fees as authorized and provided in said Judgment.

For further information concerning the above sale contact: Hon. Melissa J. Whalen, Attorney for Plaintiff, Manley Deas Kocchalski LLC, P.O. Box 42728, Cincinnati, OH 45242-0728, Tel. #614-222-4921.

Fairview Baptist Church news

By Shelby Lakes

Looking toward Easter, Bro. Johnny Baker’s message this week was titled “What Jesus Can Do For Us.” Romans 3: 23) “For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God, 24) Being justified freely by his grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus: 25) Whom God hath set forth to be a propitiation through faith in his blood, to declare his righteousness for the remission of sins that are past, through the forbearance of God.” shows why Jesus had to die, he said. From the beginning, God knew we would need Jesus, Bro. Johnny said. Only God would design a plan to save the wicked in the world. Jesus came and died so every person on earth could be saved. 1 John 4:10: “Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation of our sins.”

If God were not loving and compassionate, there would have been no reason for him to send Jesus, Bro. Johnny said. God is not only loving, but also just, and willing to meet his own demands for his own justice. In God’s eyes, sin isn’t trivial; we hurt others with our sin, and also God himself. God is worthy of our loyalty, Bro. Johnny said, worthy of us living sinless lives. He sent his son to endure his wrath for our sins. Jesus didn’t cancel God’s wrath, he absorbed it. “That’s the gospel in a nutshell,” Bro. Johnny said. Isaiah 53: 3-5 foretold Jesus’ suffering (for us): 3) “He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief: and we hid as it were our faces from him; he was despised, and we esteemed him not. 4) Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows: smitten of God, and afflicted. 5) But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon hi; and with his stripes we are healed.” God had his plan for our salvation from the beginning of the world, Bro. Johnny said, and had the congregation recite John 3:16: “For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.” “Without Jesus, you cannot stand justified before a holy God,” Bro. Johnny said. (end of sermon summary) On March 19, eight members of Fairview left on a missionary trip to Haiti, and will return on March 26. Celebrating birthdays were Dorothy Mullins, Riley Parker, Noah Ross Privett, Raygan Oaks, Sydney Staton and Martha Davidson.

News from Waynesburg Family Worship Center

Family Worship Center has prayer every Sunday morning from 9:55 to 10:20 a.m. Morning worship begins at 10:30 a.m. Prayer gathering on Sunday is at 5 p.m. and Wednesday Bible study is at 7 p.m.

There will be a men's meeting tonight (March 21) at 6 p.m. The topic is "Having a Christian Marriage." There will be a dinner followed by the meeting. All men are invited.

There will be a Week of Prayer April 7-13 at the church.

A women's prayer meeting will be held Saturday, March 30 from 10 a.m. to noon. All women are asked to join us at the church.

We have a prayer chain at the church. If you have a prayer request, call Vickie Dowell, our leader, at (606) 879-6037. There are 23 people in our prayer chain. Someone will take your request to the Lord and we need to expect God to answer. When we do this, we are putting our faith into action. Faith is what gets the job done.

Our pastor, Bro. Gates is preaching every Sunday on the cross. Many people have lost sight of the cross he said Sunday morning.

Our thoughts should be more on the cross and what it really means to us, not only at Easter, but more than we do now, but everyday! The cross Jesus carried to the top of a hill was for your sins and mine. It was not easy to bear, he stumbled under the weight of it that he fell beneath the load and someone gladly helped him share the burden.

We too should be willing to help others to carry their burdens in this life. There are things others carry that need lifting up, let us life others up, if nothing but praying for them.

Jesus gladly bore the cross, because His love was greater than the burden. He proved His love for us by dying on the cross. We should show our love for Him and others by doing and helping others. Love was what kept Him on that cross. Having His side pierced, garments rent apart, crown of thorns put on His head, spit upon - love greater than any love on this earth could imagine. He died that you and I might live. He became our sacrifice. How do we prove our love for Him? By being an example of love to others, doing what God's word says. Daily living a life in word and deed, letting others see Him in us, being a witness to others, showing God's love to others and declaring God's truth everywhere.

Are you living proof of God's love?

IJ COMMUNITY

News from the Highland United Methodist Church

Even though the weather was rainy, cold and dreary, services were held at the Highland United Methodist Church on Sunday, March 17 and several of our members were back sitting in their pews.

We also had a new attendee. Karen Davis' daughter, Lindsey, was present with her new baby son, Ethan. Mr. Wethington also worshipped with us.

Ellen and Ron Hunkins were our anniversary couple. Prayer requests were for Margie Sims Hart who is giving a kidney to a fellow church member on Thursday. What a gift for one to give to another!

Linda Wolfe, Lexington, neighbor of the Scilleys', has a gravely ill brother in Ashland.

Others lifted up and listed were Evelyn Terry (cancer), Helen Berry (UK - lungs), Carl Rogers family (Carl's passing), and Ellen Hunkins' grandson, Kevin, on Friday had had a lung operation to improve his breathing.

Doris Scilley provided special music entitled, "There's a Miracle in Every Pew." With so many of our church members having gone through such serious surgeries, illnesses, accidents, financial woes and difficulties, the song seemed very appropriate and seemed to bless most all.

Mike McGuffey, Doug May and Doris Scilley did children's church.

The sermon was based upon Matthew 23:37-39. Jesus had warned His followers to listen to the religious leaders and do what they said, but not to do what they did. Jesus then gave seven woes to those leaders. Jesus' heart was heavy when He revealed He had attempted to gather them like a hen gathers her chicks. Wise people run to Jesus for shelter, guidance and love. Pride, narrow mindedness and love for the things of this world turn unbelievers away from the love of God through Christ Jesus.

After services, the choir members practiced some of their Palm Sunday and Easter music pieces.

Next Sunday, we will need all of our children to help in our Palm Sunday service. The choir will be doing a special song at the beginning of the service.

On Easter, there will be a sunrise service followed by a breakfast served by the men. There will be an Easter egg hunt on Easter Sunday and an egg roll involving some of the adults for prizes for the little ones. On Easter, services will begin at 10:45 a.m.

All other Sundays, Sunday school is at 10 a.m. and church at 11 a.m. Feel free to worship with this band of Christian believers.

Green River Pentecostal Church news

Written by Hannah Walls on behalf of Sis. Georgia Lewis

"For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light." Eph. 5:8. Once there was darkness in us, but now God has filled us with light. We should walk with the light in Christ so that the darkness of the world might see His goodness and grace.

Wednesday nights at 7:00 p.m. Bro. Jeremy Todd is teaching a series on the powerful Prayer of Jabez. This was our last remodeling service. Next Wednesday we will have our services in the sanctuary.

Sunday services are at 10:30 a.m. and the evening service is at 6:00 p.m.

March 22-23 the youth are heading to the youth conference at CFC- Bro. Tommy Bates' church. Be in prayer for safe travels and mighty blessings!

Christmas Blessings is hosting a yard sale and breakfast on Saturday, April 13. They are collecting donations for the yard sale, and we hope to see you out for good 'ole country cooking!

Please be in prayer for those who are sick, we serve a healing God. Please help us pray for our community, church, leaders and our country. As always, let us continue to pray for Israel.

Kiddos! Come one come all! Bring your friends! March 30 is the annual Easter Celebration and Egg Hunt. The fun starts at 1 p.m. Helpers, please be at the church at 10:30 to help get ready.

Think about this: The bible says that earthly fathers desire to give us good gifts but our Heavenly Father wants to give us even better gifts. We need to make our requests made known to the Lord. Speak to God, communicate with Him, let Him speak to you. Be ready to listen that you may receive the good and perfect gifts of our father. Be blessed!

COMMISSIONER'S SALE COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY 28TH JUDICIAL DISTRICT LINCOLN CIRCUIT COURT DIVISION NO. 1 CIVIL ACTION NO. 10-CI-00269

AMERICAN GENERAL HOME EQUITY, INC.

vs.

NOTICE OF SALE

GARY K. WARNER ET AL

DEFENDANTS

FRIDAY, MARCH 22, 2013, AT 10:00 A.M.
FRONT DOOR, LINCOLN COUNTY COURTHOUSE

Pursuant to a Judgment and Order of Sale of the Lincoln Circuit Court entered February 10, 2012, and Amended Judgments entered thereafter in the above-styled civil action, the undersigned Master Commissioner will sell the following real property and mobile home located in Lincoln County, Kentucky, at the front door, Lincoln County Courthouse, on Friday, March 22, 2013, at the hour of 10:00 a.m., or as soon thereafter as said property can be sold, said property being more particularly described as follows:

Situated and located on the waters of Green River in Lincoln County, Kentucky, and being more particularly described as follows:

Bounded on the North by the lands of Richard Austin, on the South by the lands of G.W. McCre, on the West by the lands of G.W. McCre and William F. Leigh and on the East by the lands of J.L. Carrier and containing approximately 25 acres.

There is EXCLUDED from this boundary one (1) acre of land deeded to Marshall Leigh and being on the South side of this tract adjoining the land of J.S. Carrier.

This being the same real property acquired by Louveta Warner and Gary Warner, her husband, by deed from Earnest H. Brown Et Ux dated November 23, 1998, of record in Deed Book 292, Page 534, Lincoln County Court Clerk's Office.

In addition, the 2003 Giles Mobile Home, VIN #GM4607AB, located on the above-described real property which is currently owned by and titled in the name of Plaintiff American General Home Equity, Inc., shall be sold and conveyed with the above-described real property pursuant to the Judgment and Amended Judgments entered herein.

The above described real property and mobile home will be sold and conveyed subject to such valid and existing easements, restrictions, reservations, conditions, covenants and limitations apparent or of record in the chain of title.

The sale of the above real property and mobile home will be made on a credit of sixty (60) days time with the privilege extended to the purchaser of paying the entire purchase price, or any part in excess of ten percent (10%) thereof, in cash at the time of the sale. If the sale be made on credit, the purchaser shall pay to the Master Commissioner immediately at the time of the sale ten percent (10%) of the total sale price and execute bond for the balance due in sixty (60) days, bearing interest at the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum from the date of sale until paid, with a good and sufficient surety thereon; and the bond shall be secured by a lien upon said property sold which shall have the full force and effect of a judgment. The purchaser may pay the purchase price money due on the bond with accrued interest at any time before maturity.

The real property and mobile home described herein are to be sold at the time and place stated; and shall be sold free and clear of all liens, indebtedness, interests and claims of the parties hereto, subject to any and all applicable statutory rights of redemption.

All delinquent ad valorem taxes, if any, interest and penalties will be paid out of the proceeds of said sale. The purchaser will be responsible for payment of the 2013 ad valorem taxes.

Possession of the real property and mobile home will be given to the purchaser with the delivery of the deed of conveyance and the title to the mobile home. The purchaser will be responsible for all risks of loss to the premises upon acceptance of their bid at the time of sale.

The purpose of this sale is to satisfy the judgment of the Lincoln Circuit Court in the above-styled action in favor of Plaintiff in the sum of $67,480.06 plus interest, advances for the protection of the property, costs and attorney fees as authorized and provided in said Judgment.

For further information concerning the above sale contact: Hon. M. Scott Mattmiller, Attorney for Plaintiff, Bullock & Coffman, LLP, 234 N. Limestone Street, Lexington, KY 40507, Tel. #859-225-3939.

Lincoln County School District bus driver Gloria Sneed tells Board of Education members she's willing to volunteer cuts to her own income in order preserve a good education for her grandchildren.

SCHOOL CUTS

percentage of the general fund going to salaries to 75 percent, Hatter said.

Last school year, the district spent approximately 81 percent of its general fund expenditures on salaries, she added.

"We started with our auditor, who said you need to cut $1 million to $1.6 million in the next three years, because if you keep spending without that stimulus money that you had to cover your expenses ... you're going to spend out your contingency fund," she said.

Hatter said there are other districts in the state who have not corrected course and essentially zeroed out their contingency funds. Those districts have been taken over by the state and are in "real financial crisis," she said.

"We are trying to avert that for our district," she said.

The board heard from school employees and discussed Hatter's recommendation Tuesday night, but no action was taken. If implemented as proposed, the complete recommendation would:

- cut six full-time teachers' salaries and benefits from the general fund;
- cut employees who are contracted to work for 260 days per year down to 250 days;
- cut all bus driver contracts to 180 days;
- cut one day from all remaining employees not on a 180- or 250-day contract;
- cut one six-hour-per-day employee from the district office;
- remove the cost of half a district office employee from the general fund by transferring it to the food service budget;
- eliminate one secretary position at Stanford Elementary School;
- cut the number of "extended days" — days worked before and after the official school year — for elementary school counselors from 11 to five; and
- cut the number of extended days for school librarians from 14 to five.

Hatter said the recommendations are largely based on "un-biased" suggestions from other superintendents and education officials outside the district who "aren't necessarily connected emotionally like I am."

But Hatter said she couldn't bear to make some of the cuts those outside sources recommended. One suggestion was to cut all 260-day employees down to no more than 240 days.

"I have to admit that that is where my heart compromised a little bit on that one and made it to 250," she said.

Hatter said when it came to cutting positions at the central board office, she contacted other school districts to figure out if Lincoln was overstaffed.

"The answer that I came up with was 'no,'" she said. "We're not overstaffed in our secretarial support at the central office. But there is room to make a cut there."

Hatter said she intends to listen with an open mind to alternative plans for how to save the half-million.

"I can listen to people and hear their perspective and I don't dig my heels in on a decision right away," she said. "There are probably as many opinions about how it should be done as there are people who are willing to say how it should be done."

Employees' reactions

District employee Cathy Pleasants told board members she and other secretarial workers at the district level think an across-the-board percentage cut to all employees' salaries would be a fairer way to absorb the cuts.

"We all know that times are tough — we've all had several years with no raises — but it seems unfair for the lesser-paid employees to take the biggest part of the cut," she said. "It's easier to accept a reduction in pay if it's spread out among all employees and not just to certain groups. Every person, classified or certified, is a valuable employee to this district, from bus monitors all the way up to Ms. Hatter."

Academic Performance Consultant Sarah Hagans pointed out that since the half-million in cuts is just the first phase of a multi-year plan to cut the budget, it may be other people's who take a hit in future years.

"Everybody will have their turn at some point I guess," she said. "We know that there's another million coming somewhere."

Gloria Sneed, a 20-year veteran bus driver for the county, said when she first saw Hatter's recommendation, it made her very angry. But after realizing how many of her family members are dealing with budget cuts at their places of employment, too, she's "not quite steaming so bad."

Sneed, who would lose five days of work if she is cut to a 180-day contract, said the board needs to differentiate between wants and needs, with a focus on making sure students are taught well.

"I'd like to stand up here and tell you until the cows come home I can't live without my five days but I asked (Chief Deputy of Quality Support) Mr. Deatherage to get me the paperwork and I'm going to give up my five days," she said. "If my five days of my $13,000 is making and breaking whether my grandchildren get a good education or not, you can have it. But please, please keep the kids in mind and do it in a way that nobody feels like we're not appreciated."

Lincoln County High School Librarian Saundra Upchurch and McGuffey Sixth-Grade Center Librarian Stacy Faulkner both implored the board not to reduce their extended days, which they said were essential to doing their jobs.

"I feel like the counselors and the librarians are being singled out. This is my 20th year here in the district and several years ago, we have already taken a cut in our extended days," Faulkner said. "If there's going to have to be cuts made to the budget, I would like to see that spread out and not feel like that our two professions are being singled out to take the brunt of that cost."

Stanford Elementary School Attendance Clerk Pam Cook told board members the plans for her school — which include cutting 2.8 of the six teacher positions — would have a negative impact on students.

Funding for the school nurse, though not a part of the general fund cuts proposed by Hatter, is also up in the air, Cook said.

"If we lose 2.8 teachers, our secretary and our school nurse, our children are going to suffer," she said. "They're going to suffer greatly. We have 524 students in our school. We are the third largest school in this county and I don't want our children to suffer. I don't want anybody to lose their job."

Board members also heard from a Stanford Elementary School first-grade student who had written a letter requesting that her school's secretary be allowed to keep her job.

"My mommy told me some really sad news today. She told me that Ms. Jamie (Smith) might not be at our school next year," the girl read from her hand-written letter. "Miss Jamie is one-of-a-kind and our school cannot be without her. She makes me feel safe, happy and loved. ... If it would help, I will give you my piggy bank and do a fundraiser to raise money to keep Ms. Jamie, my BFF."

While the board didn't take action on any cuts Tuesday, Hatter said the board will have to have a budget for the next year completed by May 1.

all of the city's older water lines and will replace eight-inch water lines along Danville Avenue from Somerset Street north to the Sunset Motel at U.S. 150.

The plan also includes installing six-inch water lines that will create a loop in the system, allowing for improved water quality and better water pressure.

Local officials have estimated 500-600 Stanford water customers will see improved water service either directly or indirectly from the upgrade.

Water Commission Chairman Jack Withrow said residents along Danville Avenue and Foster Lane will see the most direct improvement.

USDA officials have noted the entire population of more than 3,200 in Stanford will benefit from "adequate pressures and flow for fire protection."

The plan has been in the works for years, but now that USDA funding has been approved, Withrow said he's hopeful construction could begin within six months.

Withrow said there's still a lot of paperwork to complete and a long list of conditions that must be met before the project can begin.

"You've got to jump through a lot of hoops," he said.

The $750,000 loan portion of the funding is a 40-year loan with an interest rate of 1.875 percent, according to a USDA news release.

AG OPINION

"I've talked to several people, haven't really gotten a straightforward answer," Taylor said, explaining that there did not seem to be any cases where such a situation was taken before a judge to decide.

Taylor temporarily resigned from his position as special deputy in January, shortly after he was approached about the possibility there was a conflict. However, Taylor explained via phone, he returned to the position about a month ago and said he would like to continue doing both, if possible.

Contacts with the Kentucky League of Cities could not advise him on the legality, Taylor said, explaining that some people said it was allowed and others said it was not.

During last week's Junction City Council meeting, Taylor said they were unable to find similar cases that have gone before a judge for a decision.

Noelker was authorized by the council to draft a letter to the attorney general for an opinion on the matter. While it was not legally binding, Noelker said, it would give them an idea of how to proceed with the situation.

guns.

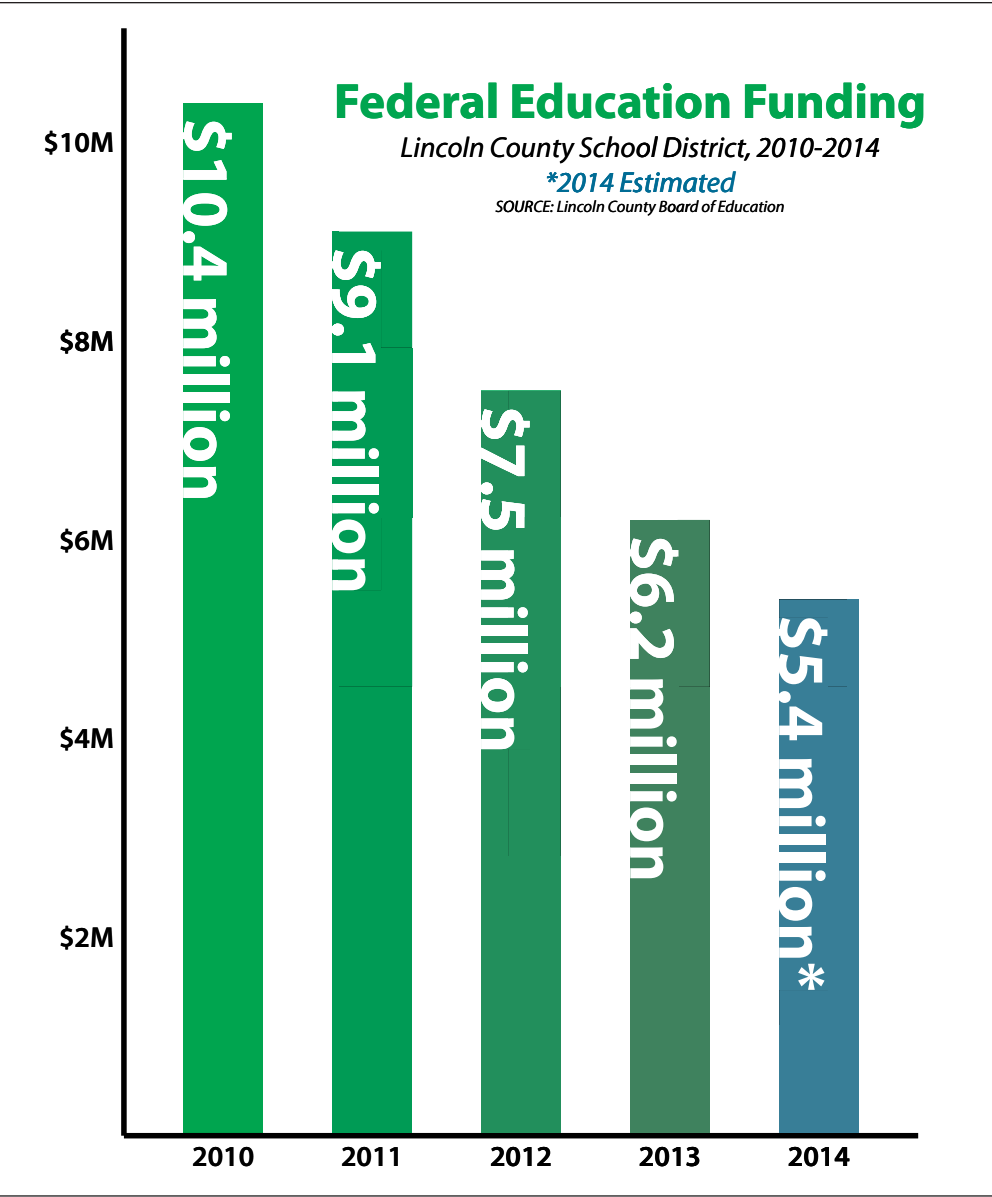

Folger said he believes it would be a sheriff's responsibility to fight any gun confiscation measure on behalf of his constituents. "The sheriffs have the citizens' backs," he told the group.

"They might come and say that you've got to do this, you've got to do that," Folger said of the federal government. "But you know what? We really don't have to do that, and we really don't have to listen to them. That's pretty much my stance on gun control."

Eastern Kentucky Sheriff

Denny Peyman gained national attention in January when he told voters he would not enforce any federal gun regulations that he considers to be unconstitutional.

Some sources estimate more than 300 sheriffs around the country have made similar statements since the Sandy Hook tragedy occurred.

overall, Hatter said.

The cuts would affect all areas of federal funding, including three areas of funding — Title I, special education and HeadStart — that are used largely to pay teachers' salaries, Hatter said.

Hatter has estimated those three funding areas will see 5- to 9-percent cuts.

"The cuts that will result will be above and beyond the cuts made to the general fund," Hatter wrote in a memo to board of education members. "In order to plan for these budget cuts without knowing the exact numbers at this time, all non-tenured employees will be issued non-renewal notices this year."

Chief Deputy of Quality Instruction Angela Cain said she has begun working on the federal portion of the district's budget for next year but can't yet "predict the impact" the cuts will have on the number of teacher positions that will ultimately be funded.

It's possible that by holding over up to 15 percent of their Title I funding from this school year, schools can hold off some cuts for one year, District Finance Officer Marsha Abel and Hatter said.

"We think that will ease it for one more year, but it won't totally eliminate (cuts)," Hatter said.

Cain said there's a bigger issue haunting future years' budgets — the sequester isn't a one-time deal.

"If it's not stopped somehow, it's going to continue," she said. "Another 9 percent next year and then another 9 percent the next year.

That's the part that's really going to impact."

Hatter said the cuts her district is facing are the toughest challenge she's faced as superintendent.

"We've had cuts, but I don't know — this feels tougher," she said. "It's because you know you're going to have to look at it again next year."

Abel said one way the school district can mitigate the loss of federal funds is to increase its property tax rate.

Tax districts like the school system can increase their revenues from property taxes by 4 percent every year as long as a public forum on the increase is held.

Next year won't be the first year federal funding has come up shorter. Documentation from the board office shows the federal contribution to the school budget has dropped dramatically over the past four years, falling from $10.4 million in fiscal year 2009-10 to an estimated $5.4 million in fiscal year 2013-14.

The sequester was designed by the U.S. Congress in 2011, when it passed the Budget Control Act. The act slashes spending in almost every area of the government by about $85 billion every fiscal year from now until 2021.

The wholesale cuts to defense and non-defense spending implemented by the act were supposed to be so distasteful to all political sides that it would force Democrats and Republicans to work together and find a better solution.

But after Congress delayed implementation of the cuts by two months, the sequester took effect March 1.

Lincoln County in need of foster families

By Ben Kleppinger
ben@theinteriorjournal.com

STANFORD — When Dan and Candy Tribuzio first met their daughter, Bailey, and their son, Cody, it wasn't under the best of circumstances.

These days, Bailey enjoys going to church and playing princess, while Cody prefers to don a cowboy hat and carry a pair of plastic six-shooters.

They both smile easily and once they start talking, it can be hard to get them to stop.

But about two years ago, their lives looked very different as foster children who had been removed from a neglectful home.

"The mom was in a bad spot — she didn't have a home," Candy said. "... It was just not a good environment for the kids."

As foster parents, the Tribuzios accepted the 10-month-old boy and 2-year-old girl into their home. In November, they officially adopted them as their own.

As three-year veterans of the local foster-parent program, the Stanford couple have cared for eight different children.

But there's a problem: In Lincoln County, there aren't enough people like Dan and Candy Tribuzio.

"We're always in need of foster families," said Buford Edwards, family services office supervisor for the Lincoln County Department for Community-Based Services. "We never really have enough to go around."

When children are removed from a home because of abuse or neglect, they have to go somewhere. They may be able to stay with a relative, but when that's not an option, they often wind up in a foster home.

If the local DCBS office can, it wants to place children in local foster homes, so they can still go to the same school and not have to learn the dynamics of a new community.

"It's hard enough when a child has to be removed from their home," Edwards said. "To lessen (that stress) as much as possible is why we try to keep them as close to home as possible."

Kristin Breeden, a Lincoln County foster parent social worker who works with the Tribuzios, said as of March 1, Lincoln County had 47 children in out-of-home care.

The county is currently 15 foster homes short of providing local homes for all of them, she said.

Without those homes available, kids get moved out of the county. Edwards said he just recently placed four children in a Laurel County foster home and another child in a Garrard County foster home.

He estimated about 50 percent of children who need a foster home in Lincoln County get to stay inside the county.

"We just never have enough families," he said. "If we had 20 (new) foster families, that may put a dent in the need."

Statewide, there are about 7,000 children living in out-of-home care, Breeden said. About 75 percent of those children are eventually able to return home to their birth parents or relatives who can care for them.

The Tribuzios, who have two biological children — William, 14, and Nick, 12 — signed up as a "foster-to-adopt" home, meaning they were willing to consider adopting the children they cared for.

"We had some friends that were foster parents. They encouraged us to do it, and we did it," Candy said. "Three years later, we've adopted two kids. We've had a couple other friends do foster parenting too, but they still need more people."

Before people become foster parents, they have to go through a training program that helps them understand what it will be like and provides them with a sense of if foster parenting is right for them.

"The classes prepared you pretty well for what to expect," Candy said. "They tell you it's going to be good for the first day or so and then reality is going to sink in. ... They told you what to expect and how to handle it and you always have your worker that you can call."

Dan said one of the hardest things about becoming a foster parent for him has been trying to avoid getting emotionally attached to the children he cares for.

One six-week-old infant the Tribuzios cared for was an especially difficult goodbye for Dan.

"We didn't even have (the baby) but two or three weeks, but you just kind of get emotionally attached. You try to keep your guard up a little bit, but it's hard," he said. "We understand what the goal is, but when you have a newborn ... it's hard not to get attached when you're up with them all night long, changing diapers and feeding them and everything else just like they were your own."

But despite having to say goodbye, Dan said being a foster parent can be especially rewarding when he gets to observe parents turn their lives around so they can get their kids back.

"That's what we're here for is to help them. Our desire is not to take anybody's kid and keep them but to help get the children returned back to their parents," he said. "That's what I would want somebody to do — if our kids were to be taken away, I would want somebody to work with us to help us get our boys back."

Candy said in the case of their two adopted children, it was difficult to bond at first because there was the potential that the children would be returned to a family member.

But once it was clear there was no way that was happening, "then we were able to settle in and really get that bond," she said. "But you never want to do that until you know for sure."

With the Tribuzios' permission, Bailey and Cody's biological grandmother still pays them visits and brings gifts from time to time, especially around the holidays and birthdays.

Candy said there is a supportive bond that can form between foster families and biological families. It's one aspect of foster parenting she hadn't anticipated.

"We just always thought we would be so mad at these people that did these things to these kids, but you realize that some of them, they're just young and they need help," she said. "So you do kind of bond with their families too, a little bit."

Dan said for him and Candy, their religion is what motivates them in part to be foster parents.

"We're able to take kids that ... were not normally able to go to church or anything like that and then we can raise them up in a Christian home and teach

SO YOU KNOW

Foster parents can be married or single and must meet the following requirements:

- must be at least 21 years old;
- must be financially stable and have income sufficient to meet the family's needs;
- must be able to provide a safe, secure and health home for a child;
- must be in good physical and mental health;
- must meet the requirements for housing safety and space; and
- must complete 30 hours of the pre-service preparation classes and all paperwork.

The training, evaluation and approval process normally takes about four to six months. The amount of time until foster parents are assigned a child depends on how flexible they are about which type of child they are willing to parent.

The training program is free. The only potential cost associated with the training is the cost of a required physical.

area, due to the fact it had not been audited since 2002.

Glass said the lack of a recent audit was due to a mixup because the FPD's board approved hiring an auditor, but then that never happened.

He has since worked with the board to hire an independent auditor and an audit has been completed, revealing "no big problems."

Glass said once he receives hard copies of the audit, he will be submitting it to the state.

Under the new legislation, all districts would have to register with the state, pay an annual fee of $25-$500 depending on their size and submit annual financial statements.

Districts like the Lincoln FPD that have annual budgets

SO YOU KNOW

Lincoln County's six special taxing districts are:

- Lincoln County Ambulance District
- Lincoln County Extension District
- Lincoln County Fire Protection District
- Lincoln County Health District
- Lincoln County Library District
- Lincoln County Soil and Water Conservation District

Lincoln County's three special non-taxing districts are:

- Garrard/Lincoln Solid Waste Management
- McKinney Water District
- Stanford/Lincoln County Industrial Development Authority larger than $500,000 would be required to have annual audits.

"That's probably the only issue I see," Glass said. "It'll probably cost us a little more money every year to do an audit."

Districts with budgets between $100,000 and $500,000, like the Garrard/Lincoln Solid Waste District, would have to be audited once every four years.

Solid Waste Director Chris Thomason said his district will be exceeding the required frequency for auditing because his budget is nested inside the Garrard County Fiscal Court budget, which gets audited every year automatically.

Thomason said even though his district is already "very accountable," the new legislation is badly needed because of problems elsewhere.

"I think it needed to be done," he said. "I do know that there's literally hundreds of districts around the state that are not as well off, as far as accountability goes."

As a non-taxing district, solid waste would not be affected by another portion of the legislation that requires taxing districts to publicly explain any tax increases.

Under the proposed law, special taxing districts would have to provide "testimony relating to the ... tax or fee at an open, regularly scheduled meeting of the governing body" — such as a fiscal court or city council — at least 10 days before the new tax or fee is set to go into effect.

Senate Republicans proposed giving fiscal courts or city governments veto power over any tax increases, but Edelen and House Democrats opposed the move.

The compromise that got the law through both chambers states explicitly that "the governing body shall not have the authority to adjust, amend or veto the fee or tax."

Special taxing districts would still be required to hold public forums if they plan to increase tax revenues by 4 percent or more, and increases above 4 percent would still be subject to a voter recall.

Glass said he would have been against a law that gave the members of the Lincoln County Fiscal Court authority over his district's tax rate.

If such a case arose and the fiscal court vetoed a Lincoln FPD tax increase, it would harm the FPD's ability to fulfill its duties, he said.

Judge-Executive Jim Adams said he supports the law as it's been passed, with no veto power.

"I would prefer that fiscal court did not have the authority to deny a tax increase," he said.

Adams said Lincoln's fiscal court already has indirect control over many special taxing districts because it appoints those districts' board members.

"We should be a good judge of who to appoint," he said. "(We should) place people on these boards that know what they're doing."

So long as a special district has a separate budget from Lincoln Fiscal Court and its finances or budget don't affect the county's, Adams said he's more comfortable leaving the county out of the official approval process.

But Adams said he likes the idea that tax increases will have to be publicized. Right now, none of the special districts come before fiscal court with their planned tax increases, he said.

"It's probably a good thing that they are going to bring them to the fiscal court."

The bill would require financial information submitted by special districts to be available for free in a searchable online database no later than October 2014.

Lincoln falls to Owensboro Catholic in first round of Sweet Sixteen

By Nancy Leedy
BOWLING GREEN — With 7:32 left in the game at E.A. Diddle Arena, the Lincoln County girls basketball team was rolling. Sydney Harris had gone hard to the basket, scoring 13 of her team-high 18 points to help whittle a 13-point

Owensboro Catholic lead down to just three points. But it wouldn't last. The Lady Aces scored seven of the next 10 points to go up 56-46 and the Lady Patriots never caught up again. Owensboro Catholic ended

Lincoln's season with a 66-55 victory in the first round of the KHSAA Girls Sweet Sixteen State Tournament.

"This is not where we want to be sitting right now. We wanted to get that game in hand. We didn't come out to a good start in the first quarter, weren't able to put the ball in the hole," Lincoln coach Cassandra McWhorter said. "Definitely not where we thought we would be. We wanted to get back to that Final Four and even more. We had a taste of it last year, and we wanted to come back this year and make another run."

Cold shooting cost Lincoln its shot at a second straight successful run in the state tournament. The Lady Patriots got the shots they were looking for but couldn't convert, going 24-for-63 from the field overall, 3-for-22 from 3-point range.

"You don't shoot the ball great every night, and I felt our girls were ready to go," McWhorter said. "We'd been shooting the ball well in practices. Just sometimes you have those games where the ball is not going in the hole and it touches every part of the rim except going through the bottom of the net."

"The first half especially, we didn't shoot it well," she said. "We bounced back the second half and got a lot more shots to fall, but overall, 38 percent, that's not our normal. And I think they had a lot to do with that."

Harris was 8-for-13 from the field for her 18 points. She also led Lincoln (27-6) on the boards with seven rebounds. Emily Fox also hit double figures, finishing with 13 points, but was just 6-for-19 from the field, 1-for-7 from 3-point range. Fox also had four assists and two steals.

Lincoln, despite its cold shooting, battled back from a 13-point deficit to get within 33-26 by halftime.

The Lady Patriots, after going 3-for-18 from the field through the first 9 minutes, 30 seconds of the game, finally started clicking offensively. Down 20-7, Harris scored on a tipin, Tiandra Hocker added three quick buckets, two off steals, Kourtney Belcher followed with a jumper and two free throws, Fox drained a 3-point goal then Harris closed with two more buckets to make it a seven-point game.

Girls 3200 relay, Hocker, Shofner win in all-comers at EKU

By Nancy Leedy
The Lincoln County girls 3200-meter relay team, sprinter Santana Hocker and triple jumper Luke Shofner led the Lady Patriots and Patriots at Saturday's season-opening Model All-Comers meet, with each earning first place at the Eastern Kentucky University track complex in Richmond. The Lady Patriot relay team, which includes senior Alex Bunch and freshmen Morgan Gourley, Logan Godbey and MaHaley Long, had little trouble bringing home first in the distance race, finishing a full minute and 41 seconds ahead of the second-place team from Burgin. The Lincoln runners covered the 3200 meters in 12:13.31. Burgin's Riley Brown, Danielle Peavler, Shelby Pettit and Kiley Luallen combined for a time of 13:54.67.

Hocker and Shofner were all alone in first place at the finish of their respective victories.

More than a second separated Hocker from the second-place runner in his 200-meter dash win, with the Lincoln senior crossing in 24.17 seconds. It was a 1-2 finish for Lincoln in the sprint as teammate Haydon Hale, a freshman, claimed second in 25.91 seconds.

Distance and not speed was where Shofner excelled in the Model meet, as the Lincoln junior won the triple jump event with a jump of 36-09.50, over three-feet longer than his nearest competitor, Owsley County's William Bowling. Bowling cleared 33-05.00.

Lincoln collected just three wins, however, the Patriot and Lady Patriot track teams brought home a box load of hardware with nine boys individuals, six girls individuals and two girls teams scoring in the all-comers meet.

The Patriot track and field team scored 64 points, including 20 points for Hocker's and Shofner's firsts, to finish fourth out of 10 teams. Lincoln finished in the top 6 to score in 6 of the 17 boys events contested.

Hocker and Shofner both scored in multiple events, with Hocker placing second in the 100-meter dash in 11.95 seconds and Shofner going 18-00.00 to place second in long jump. Shofner also scored in the 100-meter dash and 200-meter dash, placing third in the 100 in 12.55 seconds and sixth in the 200 in 26.50 seconds. Distance runner Brian Carlson was another multiple scorer, placing in the top six in both the 800 and 1600-meter runs. Carlson, a sophomore, ran second in the 800 in

Leprechaun Leap raises more 'green' for LC soccer

By Nancy Leedy

For a couple hours Saturday morning, the streets of downtown Stanford were a little greener than usual, with people milling around town dressed in their St. Patrick's Day finery.

The purpose of the green attire was not just to celebrate the holiday. No, those choosing to wear green garb did so because they were participating in the third annual Leprechaun Leap 5K Run/Walk.

Main, was sponsored by the Lincoln County High School Boys and Girls Soccer Boosters as a fund-raiser for the two programs.

A total of 47 runners and walkers forked over entry fees of $25 and $20 to participate in this year's Leprechaun Leap.

Shane Peck, 42, of Stanford was the overall winner in the fund-raiser run/walk, finishing the race in a time of 21:37.

The female Leprechaun Leap title went to an out-of-county runner, with Ada Benson of Danville the first female to cross the finish line. Benson, 13, posted a time of 23:14 which placed her third overall.

To add to the fun of the run/walk, a Lucky Charms Challenge table was set up mid-race for those participants willing to interrupt their running to compete in a speed-eating contest. At the conclusion of the race, only two participants, and a rider, had partaken of the cereal. Peyton Griffin, 11, of Hustonville stopped for a quick bite and Evelyn Jane Barker, 39, of Lancaster also grabbed a few spoonfuls. Jesse Friend, 3, who was being pushed along in a stroller by her mom, Mary Friend, also stopped to eat some cereal. Griffin received a bulk-size box of Lucky Charms for winning the cereal challenge.

With a "pot of gold" prize up for grabs in the Leprechaun Leap costume contest, several runners did wear St. Patrick's Day-themed clothing for the race. Barker did not win the cereal challenge but the Lancaster runner, decked out in a green-and-white felt top hat, green t-shirt, shamrock necklaces and bracelets and shamrock-decorated fingernails, took home the prize, a small black bucket filled with chocolates wrapped in gold-colored foil.

If the sale be made on credit, the purchaser shall pay to the Master Commissioner immediately at the time of the sale ten percent (10%) of the total sale price and execute bond for the balance due in thirty (30) days, bearing interest at the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum from the date of sale until paid, with a good and sufficient surety thereon; and the bond shall be secured by a lien upon said property sold which shall have the full force and effect of a judgment. The purchaser may pay the purchase price money due on the bond with accrued interest at any time before maturity.

The real property described herein is to be sold at the time and place stated; and shall be sold free and clear of all liens, indebtedness, interests and claims of the parties hereto, subject to any and all applicable statutory rights of redemption.

All delinquent ad valorem taxes, if any, interest and penalties will be paid out of the proceeds of said sale. The purchaser will be responsible for payment of the 2013 ad valorem taxes.

Possession of the real property will be given to the purchaser with the delivery of the deed of conveyance thereto. The purchaser will be responsible for all risks of loss to the premises upon acceptance of their bid at the time of sale.

The purpose of this sale is to satisfy the judgment of the Lincoln Circuit Court in the above-styled action in favor of Plaintiffs in the sum of $38,000.00 plus interest, advances for the protection of the property, costs and attorney fees as authorized and provided in said Judgment.

For further information concerning the above sale contact: Hon. Daryl K. Day, Attorney for Plaintiffs, 214 West Main Street, Stanford, KY 40484, Tel. #606-365-9161.

EKU MEET

From B1

2:14.54 and was third in the 1600 in a time of 4:56.46. Burgin runner Alex Beckerson took first in both events, winning the 800 in 2:11.44 and the 1600 in 4:52.55.

The Lady Patriot team had 41 points in the meet, 10 points for the 3200 relay win, to place seventh out of 10 teams. Lincoln scored in six events.

Gourley and Godbey were also a part of Lincoln's second-place running 1600-meter relay team, joining Katie King and Briana McKenzie on track. The Lincoln team covered the distance in 5:03.66 for second and eight points.

The Lincoln girls picked up the rest of their points in three different individual events. Kanesha Miller and Taelor Owens finished 3-4 in the girls 100-meter dash, with Miller edging out Owens with a time of 15.35 seconds. Owens' time was 15.37 seconds. Miller added to Lincoln's point total with a strong performance in the 200-meter dash as well. Miller ran fifth overall with a time of 31.59 seconds. King also scored in the 200, placing sixth in 31.85 seconds.

It was a 3-4 finish for Lincoln in the girls 800-meter run as well, with Bunch and Godbey claiming two of the top four spots. Bunch ran third overall in a time of 2:44.17 while Godbey followed right behind her in fourth-place in a time of 2:52.80.

SWEET SIXTEEN

that we were right where we were at when we played them (Catholic) in Lexington (a 69-55 win). We regrouped at halftime. I told the girls the momentum was in our favor," McWhorter said. "We made a run and cut it to seven. I thought we came out and did some things well, just never could get it to where we wanted it to be."

Owensboro Catholic's lead continued to shrink as the second half opened, with Lincoln using a 6-0 run to get within three. Belcher scored on a jumper and Harris knocked down back-to-back buckets to make it 37-34 with 3:39 left in the third quarter. Fox got a layup off a Belcher steal with 2:33 showing for a 39-36 margin then she hit a jumper off a Rachel Spangler steal with 1:09 to play in the third to make it 42-39.

A Destiny Howard layup and two Mikayla Berry free throws pushed the Lady Aces' lead back to 46-39 before Spencer Sims closed the half with a jumper to make it 46-41 going into the fourth quarter.

Harris drove on Miss Kentucky Basketball candidate Rebecca Greenwell for a bucket 28 seconds into the final frame to get Lincoln within three for a fourth time, 46-43.

But Lincoln got no closer. The Lady Patriots missed seven of their last 12 field goal attempts and turned the ball over five times in the final seven minutes of the game.

"We just could never get over that hump. We kept getting stops, and we were sometimes able to score," McWhorter said. "But our girls stayed in it. We had some runs made there. We just never could get back over and get that lead once they had established that lead."

Kaylyn Pearson, who had 15 points and 11 rebounds for the Lady Aces, converted on a three-point play to push Owensboro Catholic (25-7) ahead 49-43. The Lady Aces, who led by as many as 12 points in the fourth quarter, sealed their fate at the free-throw line, sinking 15 of 20 foul shots in the final 5:37 of the game. Owensboro Catholic collected almost half of its total points from the line, going 31-for-40 overall.

"We didn't do a good job attacking the rim early," McWhorter said. "But when a team shoots 40 attempts and you just shoot six, that's hard to overcome. That makes it tough."

Greenwell, a 6-1 senior guard who has already signed with Duke, had a game-high 32 points and grabbed 12 rebounds as the Lady Aces outrebounded Lincoln 34-27.

Greenwell scored 24 of her 32 points in the first half to help Owensboro Catholic get the early jump on Lincoln.

"She is a McDonald's All American for a reason. She's a great player and she shot the ball well," McWhorter said. "I thought we did a better job on her in the second half."

Ciara Saylor scored the game's first basket on a tipin with 6:17 left in the first quarter to give Lincoln the early lead, but Owensboro Catholic burned the nets for 14 unanswered points before the Lady Pats hit again. Greenwell scored nine of the 14 points then added a layup before the buzzer to give the Lady Aces a 16-5 advantage.

Two Greenwell free throws and a Howard jumper made it 20-7 before Lincoln started its comeback effort.

Owensboro Catholic, which shot 47 percent (16-for-34) overall from the field, was at 53 percent the first half on 9-for-17 shooting.

Berry finished with 10 points for Owensboro Catholic.

Spangler had five assists for Lincoln.

Winter and early spring pruning tips

As spring approaches, many homeowners begin to think about their yard's landscape. The winter months can be damaging to trees and shrubs. To ensure healthy spring plants, homeowners may want to prune the trees and shrubs around their home. But do not just prune for the sake of pruning, make sure you have a valid reason for pruning before you begin.

Pruning during the late winter months allows for the removal of damage caused by winter winds and precipitation. The wounds caused by pruning heal most quickly this time of year just as new growth is emerging on the plant.

Pruning also allows removal of diseased, crowded or hazardous branches. When pruning trees, the size of the tree does not need to be reduced too much in one season. Limit the pruning amount to one-fourth of the tree's volume. Start by thinning out branches by cutting them off close to the tree's trunk or a large limb.

Leave the base of the branch, known as the collar, intact. Cutting the collar will prevent the plant from growing over the wound caused from pruning. Pruning in this manner allows for a healthy tree that is more open to sunlight and air movement. If the branch is cut back only part way, there will likely be a crowded regrowth of new branches where the cut was made. Do not seal or paint the wounds resulting from pruning because this will only delay the tree's healing process.

With spring-flowering shrubs, rejuvenation pruning may be needed and the time to prune is fast approaching. The best time to prune these plants is right after they have flowered. If the shrub is pruned before it blooms, the buds have been removed before their flowers were enjoyed. When pruning is done after blooming, the flowers will have been enjoyed and the plant can recover, grow, and produce more buds for flowers next spring.

Rejuvenation pruning removes one-third of the shrub's oldest growth. This pruning entails selecting the thickest, darkest and unhealthiest stems or branches and cutting them back. Stems should be cut back to soil level and branches to the point of intersection with the shrub's main trunk. This ensures that only the youngest, most productive wood (that which produces the most/best flowers) remains a part of the shrub. Shrubs that will bloom during the summer months can also be pruned during the early spring.

Pruning is not limited to a certain time of year. Homeowners can prune at any time if they notice branches and limbs that are damaged either from weather, disease or insects. Pruning is invigorating for the plants in a home landscape so one should not necessarily think of pruning as a means of size control. If you have a plant that has grown out-of-bounds, pruning may not be the answer – you may need to consider replacing the plant with one that will reach a smaller size at maturity.

The Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service's online database, www.GardenData.org, can answer many of your pruning and other gardening and landscape questions.

Advisor Sheila Padgett consults with an eighth grade student during the first annual Operation Preparation, a Kentucky initiative to help students become college and career ready.

Community members, leaders take part in Operation Preparation with students

On Monday and Tuesday, March 11 and 12, forty-five community members, business leaders, parents, educators and board personnel arrived at the Lincoln County Middle School to take part in the first annual Operation Preparation, a Kentucky initiative to help students become college and career ready.

These community advisors sat down one-on-one with eighth grade students to discuss their hopes, dreams and plans for the future. Using each student's Individual Learning Plan (ILP) advisors guided students through researching career choices, college/technical school programs available, potential earnings, as well as, the test scores and high school classes needed to prepare for their career choice.

The entire eighth grade class, two hundred and seventy-five students, participated in Operation Preparation. Some reactions from the eighth grade students were, "It got me excited about taking the ACT and I feel like I can do well and get a full ride to college," said Abby Sparkman. "Yeah," added Alex Southerland, "I felt like I can really be what I want to be as long as I try, it's actually possible to achieve my dreams." William Ison said, "It was very helpful. It showed me what I needed to work on and it showed me that the job I want really is a good choice for me. That made me feel better."

Assistant Principal Don Story said, "Operation

Preparation was a great success. The students seemed genuinely encouraged by the advice and support they received from advisors and were understanding the connection between the work they are doing in school now and their plans for the future."

When asked about the community volunteers Principal Debbie Sims responded, "I was absolutely overwhelmed by the support from our community. I feel like the volunteers were excited about taking part in the school and encouraging the success of our students. Many of the advisors asked to come and participate again next year. It was a wonderful experience for everyone and I cannot thank our community enough for their help. This would have been an impossible undertaking without them."

SALE CANCELLED

HOSA members participate in “Unite to Read”

“Unite to Read” is a statewide literacy project designed by members of the Kentucky Career and Technical Student Organizations. The campaign focus was on literacy awareness in all grades as well as in the community. The local chapter of Lincoln Co. HOSA participated in the statewide on Nov. 27.

Several activities are planned by the student organization. HOSA prepared a program of work to include using the theme from the book about monkeys to play a game with the students. The “Share a Story Night” was held at Waynesburg Elementary School on Nov. 27 for all Lincoln County School District Elementary School students. Elementary students and parents visited various booths demonstrating reading activities.

The “Share a Story Night” will complete the KET Ready Set Grow initiative. This initiative is a national literacy campaign that inspires adults to help children develop language and literacy skills through daily activities such as reading, drawing, storytelling, rhyming and singing. For middle and high school students, the “Unite to Read Certificate Program” encourages reading books and improving literacy during the school year in order to receive a gold (25 books), silver (20 books) or bronze (15 books) certificate. Certificate recipients will be recognized at the end of the school term. Students receiving certificates were recognized at the HOSA – Future Health Professionals Spring Leadership Conference held in Louisville on March 7-9.

FINANCIAL AID TIP Federal student aid programs can help pay college costs

The federal government sponsors numerous financial aid programs that can help students and their parents pay college expenses. This brief summary from the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA) describes the more common federal grant and loan programs. Grants generally do not have to be repaid, but loans do.

- Federal Pell Grant: Pell Grants provide up to $5,550 per year for undergraduates with financial need.
- Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant: grants that provide up to $4,000 per year for undergraduate students who have exceptional financial need.
- Federal Perkins Loan: loans for students with exceptional financial need. Undergraduates can get up to $5,500 per year, while graduate students can get up to $8,000 per year.

- Federal Stafford Loan: Stafford Loans are available to undergraduate, graduate and professional students. The amount students may borrow depends on their year in school.
- Federal PLUS Loan: Parents of dependent undergraduate students may qualify for PLUS Loans, depending on the parents’ credit ratings. The amount available depends on how much other financial aid the student receives. Graduate students may apply for PLUS Loans if they have exhausted all of their Stafford Loan eligibility.

The Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) is used to apply for all of these programs. Families seeking a PLUS Loan must also submit a separate application. To find links to other useful education websites, go to www.gotocollege.ky.gov. For more information about Kentucky scholarships and grants, visit www.kheaa.com; write KHEAA, P.O. Box 798, Frankfort, KY 40602; or call 800-928-8926, ext. 6-7372.

Leprechaun Leap a success

On behalf of the LCHS Soccer Boosters, we would like to thank everyone for making our third annual Leprechaun Leap 5K a success on Saturday, March 16. Special appreciation goes to the city for use of the parking garage; our mayor, Bill Miracle; and the Stanford City Police. We want to personally thank Durham's Grocery and Save-A-Lot for their food and water donations for our runners. And, of course, none of this would be possible without the magnitude of support we get from our dedicated parent and student volunteers.

We would also like to recognize our sponsors for the event: Dr. Shea Lair, Inter County Energy; Wear the Word, Stanford Eye Center, Hilltop Florist, Ricks, Bluegrass Ag Distributors, Precision Chiropractic and Fitness, Garstka & Gander, AGE Engineering, Kentucky National Guard, Teresa Reed, Sarabeths' Signature Salon, David Land Tax Service, Farmers National Bank, Daryl Day County Attorney, Richmond Auto Parts Technology, Gentle Dental Care, Bob Allen Motor Mall, First Southern National Bank, Eldon Communications, Stanford Veterinary Hospital and Kentucky Farm Bureau.

See you next year!

Ephraim McDowell Health welcomes new psychiatrist

Ephraim McDowell Health is pleased to announce the newest physician on the medical staff, Dr. Beth A. Johnson, psychiatrist.

Dr. Johnson is a graduate of the University of Minnesota Medical School in 2000 and completed her residency, also at the University of Minnesota, in 2004. She is board-certified in Psychiatry and has active staff privileges at Ephraim McDowell Regional Medical Center. Her practice will focus on adult psychiatry and she will be seeing patients in the new Ephraim McDowell Specialty Center Annex (formerly the Montgomery Building), located at 222 South Third Street in Danville.

Dr. Johnson has recently served our country as an embedded physician with an Army brigade as soldiers transitioned from their tour of duty in Afghanistan to returning home. Assigned to the Humana Military Ireland Hospital at Fort Knox, Dr. Johnson managed the care of high risk soldiers and coordinated inpatient psychiatric

MUSIC IN OUR SCHOOLS MONTH

IN CELEBRATION of March being "Music In Our Schools" month, the choruses of Lincoln County's six elementary schools, choirs from the Lloyd B. McGuffey 6th Grade Center and Lincoln County Middle School and the Lincoln County High School intermediate chorus came together on the stage of the Stuart Underwood Auditorium to present their annual District Choral Concert. Above, the LCMS choir, which was directed by Carlee Cornett, adds some dance moves in their performance of a Taylor Swift medley. At left, an audience member catches a performance by LCMS' Sarah Clem on her Ipad. The McGuffey Center choir, which was conducted by Nicole Short, performed songs from the "Annie KIDS" musical, below right. The Crab Orchard, Highland, Hustonville, McKinney, Stanford and Waynesburg elementaries performed together, below left, under the direction of Stuart Underwood, with Sharon Williams serving as guest accompanist. At bottom, Underwood introduces the combined choruses before their presentation of the Armed Forces Salute.

Ephraim McDowell Health receives recognition

Ephraim McDowell Health was recently awarded the American Diabetes Association (ADA) Education Recognition Certificate for their quality diabetes self-management education program. The ADA believes that this program offers high-quality education that is an essential component of effective diabetes treatment.

The Association's Education Recognition Certificate assures that educational programs meet the National Standards for Diabetes Self-Management Education Programs. These standards were developed and tested under the auspices of the National Diabetes Advisory Board in 1983 and were revised by the diabetes community in 1994, 2000 and 2007.

Programs apply for Recognition voluntarily. Programs that achieve Recognition status have a staff of knowledgeable health professionals who can provide participants with comprehensive information about diabetes management. Education Recognition status is verified by an official certificate from the ADA and is awarded for four years.

"The process gives professionals a national standard by which to measure the quality of services they provide," says Angie Chadwell, RD, CDE, clinical nutrition manager and certified diabetes educator at Ephraim McDowell Health. "And, of course, it assures the consumer that he or she will likely receive high-quality service."

According to the ADA, there are 25.8 million people of 8.5 percent of the population in the United States who have diabetes. While an estimated 18.8 million have been diagnosed, unfortunately seven million people are not aware that they have the disease. Each day approximately 5,205 people are diagnosed with diabetes. Many will first learn that they have diabetes when they are treated for one of its life-threatening complications – heart disease and stroke, kidney disease, blindness, and nerve disease and amputation. About 1.9 million new cases of diabetes were diagnosed in people aged 20 years or older in 2010 in the US. Diabetes contributed to 231,404 deaths in 2007, making it the seventh leading cause of death in the US. Overall, the risk for death among people with diabetes is about twice that of people of similar age but without diabetes.

The ADA is the nation's leading non-profit health organization supporting diabetes research, advocacy and information for health professionals, patients and the public. Founded in 1940, the Association has an area office in every state and conducts programs in communities nationwide.

The above described real property will be sold and conveyed subject to such valid and existing easements, restrictions, reservations, conditions, covenants and limitations apparent or of record in the chain of title.

The sale of the above real property will be made on a credit of thirty (30) days time with the privilege extended to the purchaser of paying the entire purchase price, or any part in excess of ten percent (10%) thereof, in cash at the time of the sale. If the sale be made on credit, the purchaser shall pay to the Master Commissioner immediately at the time of the sale ten percent (10%) of the total sale price and execute bond for the balance due in thirty (30) days, bearing interest at the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum from the date of sale until paid, with a good and sufficient surety thereon; and the bond shall be secured by a lien upon said property sold which shall have the full force and effect of a judgment. The purchaser may pay the purchase price money due on the bond with accrued interest at any time before maturity.

The real property described herein is to be sold at the time and place stated; and shall be sold free and clear of all liens, indebtedness, interests and claims of the parties hereto, subject to any and all applicable statutory rights of redemption.

All delinquent ad valorem taxes, if any, interest and penalties will be paid out of the proceeds of said sale. The purchaser will be responsible for payment of the 2013 ad valorem taxes.

Possession of the real property will be given to the purchaser with the delivery of the deed of conveyance thereto. The purchaser will be responsible for all risks of loss to the premises upon acceptance of their bid at the time of sale.

The purpose of this sale is to satisfy the judgment of the Lincoln Circuit Court in the above-styled action in favor of Plaintiff in the sum of $118,903.22 plus interest, advances for the protection of the property, costs and attorney fees as authorized and provided in said Judgment.

Ephraim McDowell leading the way in newborn heart disease screening

Ephraim McDowell Regional Medical Center (EMRMC) is leading the way in testing newborns for congenital heart disease. A bill before the Kentucky State Senate may require all hospitals to administer this test in the future. In early March, Kentucky Senate

Bill 125, an Act relating to newborn screening for congenital heart disease, passed unanimously out of the Senate Committee on Health and Welfare. The potentially life-saving pulse oximetry test measures the amount of oxygen in the baby's blood and can catch most heart defects before the infant is sent home. According to the American Heart Association, about one in 125 babies is born with a heart defect and about one in 500 has a critical defect that can be life-threatening. Ephraim McDowell

Regional Medical Center realized the importance of this screening and began this critical testing of all newborns earlier this month. "We originally learned about this test September 2012 at a National Mother Baby Conference," says

Stephanie Kilby, BSN, RNC, IBCLC, RLC, clinical manager in Labor and Delivery/Newborn Nursery at EMRMC. "After the conference we researched the screening along with the pediatricians and developed a policy, developed a letter for parents, educated the staff and then began screening. This is another way that EMRMC is delivering the most recent evidenced-based care for our patients." Ephraim McDowell Fort Logan Hospital is currently training and will soon be providing the screening to newborns delivered there.

Dr. Tamara Cranfill, professor in the College of Education Department at Eastern Kentucky University, shared with fifth grade students at Stanford Elementary the importance of going to college.

College reps visit Stanford Elementary

We at Stanford Elementary School believe: Every Student, Every Classroom, Every Day, College, Career and Citizenship Ready!

This year we are encouraging our fifth grade students to envision themselves as 2024 college graduates.

Beginning in January, different representatives from colleges in and around our area have been visiting Stanford Elementary. These representatives have been sharing with the students what makes their college a college of choice for them.

On Friday, Jan. 18, we welcomed Dr. Tamara Cranfill. Dr. Cranfill, a professor in the College of Education Department at Eastern Kentucky University, shared with the fifth grade students the importance of going to college. Cranfill discussed college life with the students and gave them an idea of what it would be like if they went to Eastern Kentucky University.

On Friday, Feb. 22, we had a Community College Day and welcomed Alison Baker from Bluegrass Community College in the morning, and Holly Bowers from Somerset Community College that afternoon. Both women were very informative on how a community college might be a wonderful college option for our students. They explained how a community college is a great starting point for students who wish to pursue a four year university degree, as well as an alternative college opportunity for students who wish to pursue careers only requiring two-year training programs or degrees.

The students were very excited to see the career possibilities, and were encouraged to find there are funding opportunities available so they too can reach their potential in achieving a future post-secondary degree.

We will continue encouraging students in this mission and will be welcoming Centre College, President John Roush in March, and the University of Kentucky's Associate Director of Undergraduate Admission, Brian Troyer in April.

We look forward to these visits and igniting a passion for learning as our students continue on their road to college graduation.

Have you ever heard of Amy Poehler or Horatio Sanz? (stars of Saturday Night Live). Have you ever found yourself laughing out loud during episodes of "Raising Hope", "Happy Endings", "Saturday Night Live", "Parks and Recreation", "The Daily Show", "MadTV" or "The Office"? If you answered yes to either question, you have witnessed firsthand the hilarious and talented work of the Upright Citizens Brigade improvisational comedy troupe. On Saturday night, March 30, 2013, Centre College* is proud to present the "next wave" of comedy superstars with The Upright Citizens Brigade Touring Company! Some of the best improv comedians will be hand-picked from New York and Los Angeles to provide two side-splitting performances of sketch comedy. While both performances will be in the Norton Center's Newlin Hall, the 8:00 PM performance is recommended for PG-13 audiences, while the 10:00 PM uncensored late-night performance is recommended for mature audiences. Discover these rising stars of improv on the Newlin Hall stage before they are discovered for the big or small screens!

*This program is co-sponsored by Centre College's Student Activities Council and the Norton Center for the Arts.
